

A photograph of a retaining wall constructed from dark, irregularly shaped stones. The wall is built in several courses and is topped with a black geotextile fabric. A white double-headed vertical arrow on the left side of the wall indicates its height, which is labeled as 2,5m. The wall sits on a bed of grey gravel. In the background, there is a grassy slope with several vertical metal posts. The foreground is a dirt and gravel area with some wooden debris.
